1.

Violation of Mandatory Condition, by failing to remain from violation of the law. On or about October 6, 2005, the defendant was arrested by officers of the North Miami Beach Police Department for a bench warrant that was issued back in December 16, 1999, for the offense of No Valid Driver's License.

U.S. Probation Officer Action:

The defendant was released from the Metro Dade County Jail on October 7, 2005, the morning after his arrest, and immediately contacted his probation officer and advised this officer of this arrest. This bench warrant was issued back on December 16, 1999. This warrant was issued prior to the defendant's placement on supervised release. At the time of this arrest, the defendant was in the Miami area attending his step-father's funeral. The defendant's supervision has been very stable and he has been complying with the terms and conditions of his supervised release since his release from the Bureau of Prisons. The defendant is residing in West Palm Beach, Florida, with his cousin and is employed full-time as a stockman at Wal-Mart Department Store. This employment has been stable for the last two (2) years. The defendant's driver's license is currently valid. The U.S. Probation Officer is asking that Your Honor take no further court action on this violation due to the fact that it occurred prior to supervision.
